LOCAL AND MISCELLANEOUS.

-Col. Reisinger, proprietor of the Meadville Republican, and Indy were here visiting to their friends during New Year's.

-Wm. Bloom's smithy still blooms as of yore, and the ring of his anvil against the heavy hammer still wakes the lusty chanticleer. .

-We are glad to learn that Harry Mabie, who has been quite sick for the past week or two, is better and improving slowly.

-The County Auditors, Messra. Cobb, Warner and Jamieson are in session this week making their usual estriement of the county accounts.

-No one as we have heard has made any new strikes, although on ·Christmas quite a right smart lot of such performances were culminated.

-We learn that Roll Cobb is about to move back into the lumber woods, not being contented out of sight of hemlock bark, or a stick of square

-T. W. West and Tom Ray, publishers of the Clarion Jacksonian, were in town last week on a visit. They report the Jacksonian flourishing, even since Cam.'s exit.

-The river is running over the banks and is still rising. It will probably be as high as it was three or four weeks ago. We know of no damage that can take place in this immediate vicinity.

-Our thanks are due J. P. Wickersham, State Superintendant of Pennsylvania, for his Annual Report of Common Schools of the State, and the Annual Report of the Soldiers' Or-

-Robert Guyton and son, the champion deer slayers of this region, killed forty deers during the season. Also, Nelt. Cole didn't do so bad for a boy, having slain seven of 'em, and didn't hunt much either.

-The ice which for several days covered the creek, forming a safe bridge, went down the river to other moorings. As the ice was quite thin and melted out gradually, but very little damage, if any was the result.

prevalent at present, should lead all blind, contrary, wind-broken and useless horses to thank their stars for their acquired deficiencies, and rejoice even in cold stables, with shavings for bedding.

-Long, lank, lean, melancholy. misanthopic dogs are seen frequently schazed in sport. They are heard too snowy and cold.

-Again we have reached that point where for the instant there seems to be a halt; a glance at the path we've come, and a blind peop into the future. As if we dwelt upon a great swinging pendulum that makes its mighty movement once in every year, and at each from motion. Every year comes and goes with changing seasons in their order, the same as of old. The pendulum is perpetual in its motion, and it travels, restless and tireless, the same are. But the dwellers have changed since one year ago, when at the further extremity of our path, we halted and named our coming course '73. Some, aye, many have dropped from the swing of life into the unknown. Some have risen out of the unknown and have started on that ceaseless, neverstopping swing. There have been heart burnings and jealousies, and broken hearts and weariness, among these swingers as before among those who lived and made the journey, now fallen off. Sins have been committed; some forgiven, some unrepented of, as of old. And there have been good deeds done and noble words spoken, and smiles and pleasant times, so the balance is kept and we swing on.

And ugain we have halted and after naming our future, 1874, we move down the path. God grant the balance of good and evil, and light and shade may be kept amid our homes, among our friends, and throughout our land.

-A case of accidental shoot occurred at President, Venaugo county, on Sunday last. Some men were looking at an old gun which belinged to a Jew, peddler, when one of the party named Ford, made the remark that the gan was useless, and he didn't believe it would shoot, at which the peddrew a revolver from his pocket, and eaid if the gun wouldn't shoot he had something that would, at the same holding the revolver in such a way that it aimed toward Ford, who told him to be careful how be handled it, and made motion with his arm as if to guard against the shot, when at that moment the revolver west off, the bal! passing through Ford's right wrist. Had Ford not thrown up his arm the shot would undoubtedly have proved fatal, as it would have passed through his lungs. Dr. Hunter of this place dressed the wound.

-- Among the holiday pleasures etc., a party of a few friends gathered at H. H. May's to witness parlor theatricals, given by the members of the household. On account of our absence we could not attend. However we learn from the guests that every one enjoyed bimself, and that the company presented quite a full bill. After the entertainment, which consisted of charades, tableaux, vocal and instrumental music, and-refreshments, a set was formed and the lovers of dancing had an opportunity, and then went | finest quality of Clay : well located, home. We were sorry indeed on account of our absence after the verdict of those who were present.

-Since the holiday festivities are over, of which there were quite a numher, everything, -what is included in that phrase is unknown to us-has settled back into its ac-custom ed state, especially the stores. The faces of visitors have vanished, and the festive pedestrianism of the inebriate reverberates no more amid the nocturnal tranquility. The attenuated depositories of legal tender deconsolately ejaculate of the-the-.

-That forward impertinent Miss, (Spring) has been trying her coquecries for several days on the old man who commonly reigns at this season. And it seems as if she had made a greater effect on his cold, stern, although pleasure-loving heart, than ever before. -Such condition of highways as are However, for the sake of congruity, we hope he will continue to frown down the jude as lately. In fact we hope things will close up.

-The holidays passed off quietly here, with exception of one or two little musses. On Christmas Eve a dance was given in Lawrence's new building, at which all, both young and old eneyeing the wary cats, which they joyed themselves hugely, and on New Year's Eve another came off in the and you will receive, postage paid, a as they walk the streets with creaking same building, with the addition of an quarter pound package together with ribs and objointed tail, and mouthful oyster supper at the Lawrence House.

-A peculiar visitor we have, ex--We were informed last week by pressed the opinion that he couldn't for sale in cakes, or in quantities to appearances throughout the external see why '74 was'nt just as much of a suit customers, at Robinson & Bonworld, that although very mild in "dead heat" as '73, considering the ner's. general, old dame could be quite stern difference between their eges. We and like her old self at this season, if showed him a quarter and bade him so disposed. We mean 'twas icy, take heart, and not be in such a hurry to pay bis bills

-Strange as it may seem our merchants are rapidly disposing of their last year's goods.

-On New Year's day while Mrs. Henry was sleigh-riding with her sonin-law, Mr. Grove, the sleigh upset just above the bridge, on Water street, extremity of its are comes this rest throwing them both out and breaking and elbow. The fracture is a simple one and was reduced by Dr. Hunter.

-Last week a Mr. Host was coming down the hill on the other side of the ernek with a load of lumber from Myers' Mill, when his rough-lock gave way, and the load being too heavy for the horses to hold, it crowded them into the bank with such violence as to break oce of the horses' neck in two places.

The town is at present over-run rampage among all the cellar stores, and revel amid the debris of the attic. It is supposed they are from the oil towns, driven hence by hard times and the sheriff. We advise them to go west, where grain grows and farm produce is plenty.

-A new grocery and restaurant has been opened up on Elm street, just above Tate's office, by Wm. Smear baug. Parties wishing anything in the line of groceries, should give him a call, as he is selling very cheap and keeps a fresh stock. Also, oyster-punishers are invited to call and partake of a nice stew, gotten up in good shape and on short notice.
